BOMMERSBACH IRISES

How to Grow Irises

Have good average garden soil to which is added a little bone meal. Plant rhizome one inch deep and firm down top soil. Do not allow water to stand on Irises summer or winter.

Irises do better planted in plenty of sunshine, and divide every four years. Plant them in masses as the colors show up better.

Bearded Irises are drought resistant.

Bearded Irises may be transplanted any time from April to December. The best time is right after blooming season.

Beardless, Japanese, Siberian, and Spurias should be shipped in April or September to November.

No guarantee, expressed or implied, is made that stock will grow. Have no control over after treatment or weather conditions. The purchaser assumes all risks after stock leaves our nurseries in good condition.

All plants are of our own growing—strong and vigorous, and true to name. The figures before the varieties give the garden ratings by the American Iris Society.

Have growing many varieties not listed. If interested, write and I may have what you need, and at attractive prices.

ALL ORDERS ARE PREPAID ANYWHERE IN THE UNITED STATES. No order for less than $1.00. Send check, draft, or money order.

A State of Illinois Inspection Certificate Is on Every Shipment.
